With 1892 Russian oil forces the American imports into the second place, and thereafter becomes an aggressive competitor in the insular trade. In the enormous imports of the succeeding year, the banner year of the oil trade with a total of over a million, the United States again comes to the front with almost three times the volume of trade credited to Russia; but in the next year and the last of the Spanish recorded period Russia again leads conspicuously, and we may infer that this lead is maintained during the unrecorded period, for at the opening of the American period the United States cuts but a small figure and the history of this period is the steady reconquest of the islands' trade for American oil.

The oil imports credited to the United States do not amount to ten thousand dollars in 1900 while Russia holds over two-thirds of the total. In the increased total of the next year the United States makes large gain while that of Russia is small, and in 1902 takes the lead in this trade that she first lost a decade before and has maintained this position to the present time, though with Russia a close second and nearly equal sharer.

In 1885-1890 crude petroleum is not separately reported and though reported thereafter and in present times shows but nominal values. Lubricating oils are reported in values of but a few hundreds prior to 1891, but do not appear separately in the succeeding years of the Spanish period. In American times imports of these heavy oils show a large increase amounting to $35,444 in 1904, of which trade the United States since 1901 has held an increasingly conspicuous part and now holds nearly all. A similar monopoly she also holds in imports of the very light distillates of petroleum, the total of which for the present year is valued at $16,071.

MONTHLY SUMMARY

OF

COMMERCE OF THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

JANUARY, 1905.

PREPARED IN THE

BUREAU OF INSULAR AFFAIRS.

WAR DEPARTMENT.

EXPLANATION OF REGULAR STATISTICAL TABLES.

General imports.—The regular statement of imports of merchandise, by articles and countries, in this publication is what is termed the statement of general imports, embracing imported articles entered for immediate consumption on arrival and articles entered for warehouse.

The term “entry for consumption” is the technical name of the import entry made at the custom-house, and does not imply that the goods have been actually consumed, but simply that they have been delivered into the custody of the importer and that the duties on the dutiable portion have been paid.

The values of articles imported are governed by the regulations in effect May 1, 1899, which prescribe that the values of imported merchandise subject to duty shall be “the actual market value or wholesale price of such merchandise as bought and sold in usual wholesale quantities at the time of exportation in the principal markets of the country from whence imported, and in the condition in which such merchandise is there bought for exportation or consigned for sale, including the value of all cartons, cases, crates, boxes, sacks, and coverings of any kind, and all other costs, charges, and expenses incident to placing the merchandise in condition ready for shipment.”

Domestic exports.—The regular statement of domestic exports, by articles and countries, in this publication exhibits the exports of domestic products or manufactures, also exports of commodities of foreign origin which have been changed from the form in which they were imported or enhanced in value by further manufacture.

The value of exports of domestic merchandise is their value at the time of exportation in the ports of the island whence they are exported.

Tonnage tables.—In the tables of tonnage movement the tonnage is stated in net tons of 100 cubic feet carrying space after the prescribed allowances are made for crew space, engine space, etc.

Weights.—In all tables published the ton weight is 2,240 pounds and the hundred weight is 112 pounds, unless indicated otherwise.

Customs districts.—Statements of imports and exports are shown by customs districts which have a certain prescribed limit of territory with a port of entry.

PHILIPPINE INTERNAL REVENUE LAW IN OPERATION.

(Manila Cablenews, March 16, 1905.)

The collector of internal revenue has submitted his report regarding the operation of the internal revenue law during the months of January and February, 1905, the first two months in which the permanent system of collection has been in force.

Since December 1, 1904, there have been issued to the city assessor and collector of Manila and to provincial treasurers, for use on and after January 1, 1905, internal revenue stamps, documentary stamps and Class A. cedula at *P1 each, to the total value of P3,378,866.24. During the same time 1,101 sets of manufacturers' books have been issued to the officers named and 98,537 license blanks covering all businesses and occupations taxed.

During the two months ending February 28, there were received reports of tax collections by the city assessor and collector and the various provincial treasurers and their deputies, as follows:

FROM THE SALE OF	January, 1905.	February, 1905.	TOTAL.
Internal revenue stamps	P281,460.08	P323,390.12	P604,850.20
Documentary stamps ..	13,990.64	12,195.22	26,185.86
Cedulas	53,863.00	291,046.00	344,909.00
Total	P349,313.72	P626,631.34	P975,945.06

The following extracts from the report are self explanatory:

Alcohol and Tobacco Products. The collection of those taxes under the provisions of Section 68 of Act 1189 was begun on January 1, 1905; on requisitions made by provincial treasurers, based on anticipated needs for the year, a total of 50,485 of these licenses have been sent for issue to the dealers and manufacturers subject thereto. If all of those licenses are issued and the taxes are collected for the full year the collections from this source during the calendar year 1905 will amount to P821,161.00. The license tax rates are very moderate, few merchants have decided to go out of business on account of such tax, and it is believed that the estimate for the year given above will be realized.

*Peso—50 cents U. S. Currency.

Merchants, Manufacturers and Common Carriers. It is not believed that the collections from this source will reach one-half of the sum heretofore collected from merchants and manufacturers. In order to collect one and a half million pesos tax from this source there would have to be P450,000,000.00 worth of taxable sales made in these islands during 1905; this would mean that every peso in circulation in the islands would pass over some store counter about sixteen times during the year. All that the agriculturist raises for his own consumption, for sale to other consumers or to exporters is exempt from this tax; meat, bread, fish, etc., sold in the markets, and the total sales of small booth keepers, are all exempt. This tax is paid at the end of each quarter, and it is too early yet to estimate what the yearly yield of this tax will be.

Occupation Licenses. Most of the patentee taxes on trades and professions, heretofore collected under the Industrial tax law, have been left out of the internal revenue law. So far 5,311 occupation license forms have been issued to provincial treasurers; if the tax is paid for a full year on each of these licenses the total collection for the year will be P423,940.00.

Cedulas. The cedula tax collections promise to exceed all previous years; the most satisfactory feature being the large increase in the number of regular, or P1, cedulas called for by provincial treasurers. During the first four months of 1904 there were reported sold in the entire archipelago including Manila, 537,410 cedulas; up to date this office has issued to provincial treasurers 1,399,500 Class A., P1 cedulas out of 1,400,000 printed. The provincial treasurers insist that they will sell the entire number already issued during the first four months of this year, and some of them say they will need more. 200,000 more are being printed. The total number of cedulas sold during 1904, regular and delinquent for that and previous years, was something over 1,200,000.

Banks, Bankers and Insurance Companies. The taxes imposed on these concerns in Sections 111 and 126 of the internal revenue law became operative on August 1, 1904, but the tax on banks is made payable in semi-annual instalments on the 1st day of February and the 1st day of August, in each year, and by insurance companies annually on the 1st day of April. So far six banks have been assessed in Manila, and up to the end of February, 1905, a total collection of ₱45,200.01 had been reported for the first five months' accrued taxes.

Alcohol, Tobacco Products and Matches. Since August 1, 1904, all manufacturers of alcohol and tobacco products have each month filed in this office a sworn statement giving the monthly output of tax paid cigars, cigarettes, etc., from their manufactories. Adding these figures together, for any particular manufactory, for the five months ending December 31, 1904, and subtracting this total from the 1904 total output, as declared by the manufacturer, the remainder will represent seven-twelfths of the manufactory output for a normal year before the internal revenue taxes were imposed. There is no guess work about this calculation; it is based entirely on the manufacturer's own figures.

It will be remembered that the manufacturers of cigarettes stated repeatedly that the total output of cigarettes in these islands during a normal year had been 9,000,000,000, of which 6,000,000,000 were produced by some 30 manufactories located in Manila; the official assessment data now shows that scarcely 4,000,000,000 cigarettes were produced in Manila during a normal year before the internal revenue taxes were imposed.

Fermented Liquors. The internal revenue law did not increase the price of a glass of beer to the consumers, and if there has been any reduction in beer consumption in these islands since August 1, 1904, it is safe to assume that it has not been caused by the new tax. Neither does the manufacturer pay this tax; it is paid by the dealer out of the profits he previously made on its sale. At the present rate of consumption there will be 3,125,000 liters of domestic beer consumed in these islands during 1905, and a much smaller amount of imported beer which pays no internal revenue tax. The annual tax collection from beer will be about ₱125,000.00 under existing conditions.

Matches. At the present rate of tax collection over ₱100,000.00 will be collected during 1905 on domestic matches, and about ₱45,000.00 on imported matches.

Manufactured Tobacco. Reports from the provinces are as yet incomplete, and as far as can now be estimated the total annual collections on manufactured tobacco in these islands will not greatly exceed ₱90,000.00, or an annual consumption of about 180,000 kilograms.

Cigars. In anticipation of the passage of the internal revenue law the market was overstocked with cigars during the month of July, 1904. The measure of such overstocking was the number and efficiency of the operatives in the manufactories and the supply of suitable leaf tobacco; there was no abundance of either, and sometime in October, 1904, the cigar market resumed its normal conditions. At the present rate of collections over ₱150,000.00 will be collected in these islands during 1905 on cigars, which represents an annual consumption of from 60,000,000 to 70,000,000 cigars. There will in addition be, at the present rate, about 80,000,000 cigars exempt from internal revenue taxes exported to other countries during 1905. This makes a total annual output of from 140,000,000 to 150,000,000 cigars, largely from Manila manufactories. It might not be amiss to direct attention here to the leaf tobacco supply and to suggest the urgent need of increasing the quantity and improving the quality thereof. Otherwise there is immediate danger ahead, danger that after getting the American market, for which the tobacco manufacturers are now working, they will be unable to supply the demand for cigars of certain grades.

Distilled Spirits. During the last two months there has been a distinct revival in the liquor market, especially in the provinces. This tax is now being collected at an annual rate in excess of ₱1,000,000.00; when normal conditions shall have been fully restored it is confidently expected that the annual tax yield from distilled spirits will be considerably in excess of ₱2,000,000.00.

Cigarettes. During the month of February and the first ten days in March, the output of cigarettes from the local manufactories continues to increase from day to day. At the present rate of collection the annual yield of the cigarette tax will exceed ₱2,250,000.00.

Collector Hord estimates that the yield of the internal revenue taxes for 1905 will amount to ₱8,730,000.00, basing his estimate on the experience of the past two months.

The Panama Canal and the Philippines.

The effect upon distance is the paramount factor in the bearing of the Panama canal on commerce, and the traffic it will accommodate will be largely governed by the nautical miles saved over pre-existing sea routes. The advantages that will accrue to some sections will be great; but with regard to the Philippines the significance of the canal is singularly equivocal, since from the standpoint of mileage, the distance to the American north-Atlantic seaboard, which alone is at present concerned in Philippine trade that is in any degree affected by the canal, would remain about the same as it is now via Suez. There would be an advantage in favor of Gulf ports, and in the shifting of traffic to these ports in the anticipated re-adjustment of trade channels that would follow the opening of the canal the average commercial distance between this section of the United States and the Philippines would be somewhat in favor of Panama. With the advantage of lower tolls, however, and with the extension of the American coastwise laws to the islands, which will give to an American vessel exclusive carrying privileges throughout, and permit also of a coasting trade embracing the whole American seaboard, Atlantic and Pacific, from Boston or New York to Puget Sound virtually along the direct line of route to the Philippines, it seems that such advantages would accrue to the Panama route as to throw the great bulk of American-Philippine trade via Panama in spite of equal advantages in distance by way of Suez.

The following extract from the recently published report of the Isthmian Canal Commission is of interest in this connection, and succinctly indicates the commercial bearing of the canal on the Philippines.

The effect of the isthmian canal upon the routes followed by the trade between our eastern seaboard and the Philippines will be to divert a considerable share of the traffic from the Suez to the American canal. Steamers now use the Suez, and after the American canal has been opened the choice will lie between the two canal routes. The distance by the Cape of Good Hope is too great to permit that route to compete with the canals for the traffic handled by steamers. The distances from New York to Manila by the two canals are nearly equal—11,601 miles via Suez, 11,585 by way of Panama, San Francisco and Yokohama, and 11,675 via Honolulu and Guam. From our South Atlantic and Gulf ports the distance to Manila will be much less by the American canal than by way of Suez. Chartered vessels outbound from New York will doubtless go sometimes by one route and sometimes by the other. The chief attractions of the American canal route will be the coasting trade of both seabords of the United States—the shortest route from Central America to Manila being by the great circle which passes close to San Francisco—the large volume of exports from the United States to Asia, the Asiatic coasting trade of Japan, Shanghai, and Hongkong, and the cheap coal obtainable in the Caribbean and Japanese coaling stations. The inducements of the Suez route will be the large volume of exports from the United States to Europe, and the possibility of trading at numerous intermediate ports in the British, Dutch, and French East Indies. Likewise chartered vessels returning to the United States from Manila will sometimes come by way of Hongkong, Shanghai, Yokohama (or other Japanese ports), Puget Sound, San Francisco, Central America, etc., and sometimes by the East Indian ports, the Suez Canal, and Europe. Line steamers plying under the American flag, between our eastern seaboard and the Philippines, would probably be operated through the isthmian canal and would participate in the trade between the eastern and western coasts of the United States.

The Philippine Islands are so nearly antipodal to the eastern seaboard of the United States that the commerce between the two sections will be divided between the two opposite routes, unless the tolls charged at one of the canals should be much higher than those levied at the other. A toll of nearly $2 at Suez and $1 at the American canal would doubtless cause the latter route to secure much more than half of the total traffic. The certainty of competition between the Suez and American canal routes, for the trade between our eastern seaboard and the Philippines and southern China, suggests the desirability of making the isthmian canal tolls lower than those charged by the Suez Canal Company, in order that as much as possible of the commerce of our antipodes may be made tributary to the isthmian canal. In view of the fact that the larger part of the Suez traffic can afford to pay a high toll in preference to changing from the Suez to some other route, it is not probable that the Suez Canal Company will find it profitable to make radical reductions in its charges—a reduction of 50 per cent., for instance—in order to hold the commerce of the regions situated on the margin of advantage as regards the use of the easterly or westerly canal routes; consequently it would seem that the adoption of moderate tolls—not to exceed $1 per ton net register, American measurement—for the use of the American canal would enable that waterway to secure a large share of the commerce carried on between sections so situated that their trade with each other can and will choose between the Suez and American routes.

No. 8, SERIES 1904-1905.

OF

FEBRUARY, 1905.

PREPARED IN THE

BUREAU OF INSULAR AFFAIRS.

WAR DEPARTMENT.

EXPLANATION OF REGULAR STATISTICAL TABLES.

General imports.—The regular statement of imports of merchandise, by articles and countries, in this publication is what is termed the statement of general imports, embracing imported articles entered for immediate consumption on arrival and articles entered for warehouse.

The term “entry for consumption” is the technical name of the import entry made at the custom-house, and does not imply that the goods have been actually consumed, but simply that they have been delivered into the custody of the importer and that the duties on the dutiable portion have been paid.

The values of articles imported are governed by the regulations in effect May 1, 1899, which prescribe that the values of imported merchandise subject to duty shall be “the actual market value or wholesale price of such merchandise as bought and sold in usual wholesale quantities at the time of exportation in the principal markets of the country from whence imported, and in the condition in which such merchandise is there bought for exportation or consigned for sale, including the value of all cartons, cases, crates, boxes, sacks, and coverings of any kind, and all other costs, charges, and expenses incident to placing the merchandise in condition ready for shipment.”

Domestic exports.—The regular statement of domestic exports, by articles and countries, in this publication exhibits the exports of domestic products or manufactures, also exports of commodities of foreign origin which have been changed from the form in which they were imported or enhanced in value by further manufacture.

The value of exports of domestic merchandise is their value at the time of exportation in the ports of the island whence they are exported.

Tonnage tables.—In the tables of tonnage movement the tonnage is stated in net tons of 100 cubic feet carrying space after the prescribed allowances are made for crew space, engine space, etc.

Weights.—In all tables published the ton weight is 2,240 pounds and the hundred weight is 112 pounds, unless indicated otherwise.

Customs districts.—Statements of imports and exports are shown by customs districts which have a certain prescribed limit of territory with a port of entry.

No. 9, SERIES 1904-1905.

OF

MARCH, 1905.

PREPARED IN THE

BUREAU OF INSULAR AFFAIRS.

WAR DEPARTMENT.

EXPLANATION OF REGULAR STATISTICAL TABLES.

General imports.—The regular statement of imports of merchandise, by articles and countries, in this publication is what is termed the statement of general imports, embracing imported articles entered for immediate consumption on arrival and articles entered for warehouse.

The term “entry for consumption” is the technical name of the import entry made at the custom-house, and does not imply that the goods have been actually consumed, but simply that they have been delivered into the custody of the importer and that the duties on the dutiable portion have been paid.

The values of articles imported are governed by the regulations in effect May 1, 1899, which prescribe that the values of imported merchandise subject to duty shall be “the actual market value or wholesale price of such merchandise as bought and sold in usual wholesale quantities at the time of exportation in the principal markets of the country from whence imported, and in the condition in which such merchandise is there bought for exportation or consigned for sale, including the value of all cartons, cases, crates, boxes, sacks, and coverings of any kind, and all other costs, charges, and expenses incident to placing the merchandise in condition ready for shipment.”

Domestic exports.—The regular statement of domestic exports, by articles and countries, in this publication exhibits the exports of domestic products or manufactures, also exports of commodities of foreign origin which have been changed from the form in which they were imported or enhanced in value by further manufacture.

The value of exports of domestic merchandise is their value at the time of exportation in the ports of the island whence they are exported.

Tonnage tables.—In the tables of tonnage movement the tonnage is stated in net tons of 100 cubic feet carrying space after the prescribed allowances are made for crew space, engine space, etc.

Weights.—In all tables published the ton weight is 2,240 pounds and the hundred weight is 112 pounds, unless indicated otherwise.

Customs districts.—Statements of imports and exports are shown by customs districts which have a certain prescribed limit of territory with a port of entry.

OF

APRIL, 1905.

PREPARED IN THE

BUREAU OF INSULAR AFFAIRS

WAR DEPARTMENT.

EXPLANATION OF REGULAR STATISTICAL TABLES.

General imports.—The regular statement of imports of merchandise, by articles and countries, in this publication is what is termed the statement of general imports, embracing imported articles entered for immediate consumption on arrival and articles entered for warehouse.

The term “entry for consumption” is the technical name of the import entry made at the custom-house, and does not imply that the goods have been actually consumed, but simply that they have been delivered into the custody of the importer and that the duties on the dutiable portion have been paid.

The values of articles imported are governed by the regulations in effect May 1, 1899, which prescribe that the values of imported merchandise subject to duty shall be “the actual market value or wholesale price of such merchandise as bought and sold in usual wholesale quantities at the time of exportation in the principal markets of the country from whence imported, and in the condition in which such merchandise is there bought for exportation or consigned for sale, including the value of all cartons, cases, crates, boxes, sacks, and coverings of any kind, and all other costs, charges, and expenses incident to placing the merchandise in condition ready for shipment.”

Domestic exports.—The regular statement of domestic exports, by articles and countries, in this publication exhibits the exports of domestic products or manufactures, also exports of commodities of foreign origin which have been changed from the form in which they were imported or enhanced in value by further manufacture.

The value of exports of domestic merchandise is their value at the time of exportation in the ports of the island whence they are exported.

Tonnage tables.—In the tables of tonnage movement the tonnage is stated in net tons of 100 cubic feet carrying space after the prescribed allowances are made for crew space, engine space, etc.

Weights.—In all tables published the ton weight is 2,240 pounds and the hundred weight is 112 pounds, unless indicated otherwise.

Customs districts.—Statements of imports and exports are shown by customs districts which have a certain prescribed limit of territory with a port of entry.

MANILA THE TRADE CENTER OF THE ORIENT.

Under the title of "Manila, the Trade Center of the Orient," Major-General Henry C. Corbin contributes an interesting article to a recent issue of the Manila Bulletin, which receives additional weight from the fact that the writer is chairman of a committee appointed some time since with a view to extending the importance of the port of Manila as an international distribution point for oriental trade; and the timeliness of the consideration of the matter is emphasized by the nearing completion of extensive harbor works which will put Manila in an unrivalled position for successfully bidding for the trans-shipment trade of the East. The text of the article is as follows:

The importance of Manila as a shipping center depends not alone on the agricultural and mineral resources of the country, but on the facilities at this port for handling goods with the object of trans-shipping them to America, China, Japan, Cochin China, the Straits Settlements, Java, Borneo, India and the islands of Oceanica and Australia.

The city's geographical location, her great harbor and the new dock system, which, when completed, will permit the largest ocean-going steamer to tie up alongside, all indicate that this port will be the trade center of the Orient within the next few years, if sufficient encouragement is given commercial interests.

Manila is two days from Hongkong, five from Shanghai, five from Singapore, eleven from Colombo and thirteen from Sydney. Navigable waters wash the shores of a thousand cities and towns through which pass the entire over-seas traffic of the most densely populated portions of the world, and Manila stands at the gateway of this vast trade. In little more than a half-century, Hongkong, nourished alone by the trade which passed from ship to ship in her harbor, has grown to be a great commercial city. A large portion of that business belongs by natural right to Manila.

Within a very short time this port will be provided with modern docks. These will make much greater economy in the handling of cargo and this city will be the only one along the China coast possessing such facilities. At Shanghai, the metropolis of northern China, the large steamers cannot approach within fifteen miles of the city and the cargoes must be trans-shipped by junks, launches or river steamers. At Hongkong the steamers must lie out in the harbor, the city not being provided with docks, and conditions are the same at Singapore. But with the completion of the new docks here conditions will be materially different. The ships may then go alongside and take their freight with the same facility they could in New York or Liverpool. What is most needed here is a system of bonded warehouses, the large firms of the United States shipping their goods to these warehouses on storage, while their salesmen cultivate the trade of Asia and Oceanica. A large stock of goods should be kept on hand here, and should Hongkong, for example, require a shipment of American goods, merchants of that city would be able to secure a supply within sixty hours, instead of thirty days, the shortest possible time they can now be had from San Francisco on cable order. The fact that large stocks of American made goods were on storage here would operate greatly in favor of American trade in the Orient.

It is important to further these interests to establish in Manila harbor a "free zone," a certain portion of which would be designated as a free port and into which vessels might enter with cargo intended for re-shipment to ports or places outside of the Philippine Islands, and such entrance should be made without payment of dues prescribed for vessels entering other ports of entry. The cargoes carried by these vessels should be discharged and stored under the supervision of customs officials without the formalities which now prevail in regard to the bonding of merchandise, and its exportation made without the payment of the wharfage and harbor charges now specified, and without the formalities which are now prescribed for the exportation of goods stored in bond. The committee of which I have the honor to be Chairman, recently appointed by the Governor-General to consider the shipping interests of this port, will at an early day submit a report favoring the establishment of this free zone. This is being delayed only by the time necessary to perfect the plans for the scheme.

With the development of Manila into the shipping center of the Far East would come a great increase in the business of the smaller lines of vessels.

Logically, Manila should be the terminus of the big trans-Pacific liners, which should come directly here, and would probably do so if Manila was the distributing center. The trip could be made in from thirteen to sixteen days, in itself no inconsequential detail, bringing us, as it would, so much nearer the markets of the United States. With the mammoth liners now on the Pacific bringing freight to Manila for distribution to other Asiatic ports, it may readily be seen how the business of the smaller shipping lines would be greatly increased.

The improvement of the port of Manila means much for the future commercial prosperity of the Philippine Islands. Experience with the transport service, the system of lighterage in vogue, and many other awkward details in the problem of getting goods and army supplies from ship to shore, showed plainly in the very first months of American occupation that the importance of this city as shipping port would remain comparatively low unless modern docking facilities were provided. The money that has been paid for this great work is but little compared to the good that will result to the commerce and shipping of the United States and the Philippine Islands, to say nothing of savings to the government and revenues resulting in the commercial activity here.

The full development of this harbor, with reasonable rules for the government of ship-masters, will have a significance of very great importance and be far reaching in effect, both here and at home, and give our people advantages in the Orient that will make our commerce the first of all the nations.

American Goods in the Philippines and Suggestions for Promoting Trade.

There has been a tendency in certain quarters to minimize the growth of American trade in the Philippines during the period of American occupation and to dwell upon the laggard way in which the products of the United States have followed the flag into the islands.

This criticism seems to overlook two important elements in trade extension to colonial possessions in its application to the case under consideration. In such instances which give an axiomatic coloring to the dictum that trade follows the flag it is to be generally noted that trade has already to some measure preceded the flag and indicated a marked tendency—if not actually inducing the presence of the flag; and further, that special privileges are usually enjoyed by the ruling country in the markets of its colonial possessions.

American trade has enjoyed neither of these advantages in the Philippines. Immediate commercial considerations played but a slight part in the fortuitous circumstances leading to the advent of the flag, and the fact that by treaty the United States renounced any special trade privileges in the islands for a period of ten years gives emphasis to commercial conquest not being the leading motive of American occupation, and therefore not the fair measure of American success in the islands. Then, too, in the Spanish era the demand for American goods in the Philippines was of insignificant proportions and without any definite tendency to increase, while with the change of regime the American exporter has found no special trade privileges to induce him to follow the national flag; and under such conditions it should be no matter for surprise that he has not after seven years appropriated entirely to himself the island markets and radically diverted trade from its long established channels.

In fact, apart from the stimulus of patriotism—which is not to be accounted a very active force in things commercial—and the demand created in the islands for American goods by the presence of army and civil employes of the government, the presence of the flag has thus far brought no special advantage to the American exporter, and such development of trade as he has effected in the islands is more justly to be measured by the terms of trade expansion in a foreign country than under the glamor associated with the flag.

Measured by this general American export, standard American goods make an exceptionally favorable showing in the Philippines since the termination of the Spanish regime. In the unprecedented export activity of the United States since the earlier nineties, in a total that has nearly doubled, it appears that with European consumption of American products increased by about one-third, exports to the Orient have trebled; and yet with such a rapid American trade development generally throughout the East, increased shipments to the Philippines have far outstripped the Oriental average.

Owing to the Russo-Japanese war the fiscal year figures for 1905 represent a disturbed condition of Eastern trade unsuitable for comparative purposes, but a study of United States export returns for the previous year in comparison with preceding periods in these countries where trade conditions prevail most analogous to those of the Philippines, are of interest in connection with a showing of what the American exporter is doing in our new insular possessions—a showing not without credit except to those anticipating a commercial conquest of the islands in a few years that is unwarranted by the measure of benefit that the presence of the flag has conferred on him.

Exports to China are too irregular from year to year to admit of generalization, but those to Japan show a more uniform growth from the early nineties to the beginning of the war, and the figures reveal a seven-fold increase; exports to Hongkong—that great warehouse of the Orient—in the same period have more than doubled; whereas exports credited to the Philippines during the latter years of Spanish rule were practically stationary and of nominal proportions, but since 1898 have increased approximately thirty-fold, showing a growth unexampled by those to other countries during the same period.

That the present five million dollars' worth of American exports to the islands, which has raised the United States from an insignificant rank to a foremost place in the Philippine trade, is in considerable measure due to the presence of the American flag with its contingent of government employes having preferences for American goods is no doubt true; but in the large increase there is still enough left to indicate an active and healthy export interest, and matter for satisfaction at the record made by the American exporter in a brief period against established competitors in a new field.

The prestige recently won by American wares in the world markets is such as to establish their competitive worth beside those of other countries. In the Philippines they enjoy the special advantage of free advertisement at the hands of the many resident Americans, even though the flag confers no direct favor; and the outlook of the American exporter is full of promise in the new field provided he shows his usual enterprise and a careful attention to details and local conditions.

Upon this latter point, however, there are a few words to be said, and among these details may be mentioned the matter of packing goods for export. The weakness of the American shipper in this particular seems to be a matter of general report, but with reference to goods destined for the Philippines it has been so conspicuous as to have become the basis of an active propaganda for three years past, both by the American commercial press and the customs officials of the islands with a view to improved packing methods. The testimony of officials on the wharves at Manila is of special weight upon this point, and this testimony is uniformly to the effect that American goods arrive in a worse condition than those of other prominent exporting countries. This point has been repeatedly dwelt upon in the pages of the Summary, but that much is still to be desired in this respect is evidenced by a recent statement from the insular collector of customs.

American shippers should not lose sight of the fact that their wares must face a ten thousand mile journey with repeated handlings, and such rough handlings by stevedore and hoisting tackle over ship's side as has no parallel in domestic shipments of freight. Perhaps the crowning experience in this long and rough journey is to be found upon arrival at the port of Manila, and the completion of the harbor works at that place in a short time, by which direct wharf landing will supersede the trying lighterage conditions prevailing there, will no doubt operate to the advantage of the defective packing of American goods, but the shipper of the United States should see to it that his wares are as well prepared for all contingencies as are those of other countries.

The detrimental effect of defective packing on the American export trade is palpable and operates in various ways. The normal attitude of the importer is to cater to his clientele, and the Americans throughout the islands may be trusted to demand home products; but if the merchant's repeated experience with American orders is that they entail damaged goods, claims against transportation companies, possible losses of money and interest, petty thefts inevitably growing out of broken packages in transit, and even loss of reputation in the matter of contract orders, it is only to be expected that these will weigh heavily against any inherent merit in American goods or prices, and make the importer less eager to suit his American patrons by carrying sample stocks, as it were, of American wares, thus tending to neutralize the chief advantage that has thus far accrued to American trade by the presence of the national flag in the islands.

A further shortcoming of the American exporter as noted by the collector of customs for the Philippines, is more technical in character and one on which, from his position, he is eminently qualified to speak. This concerns the matter of preparing invoices and packing goods with reference to customs requirements for the Philippine trade. Here, too, he is said to fall far below the standard set by the exporters of other countries.

Though the Philippine tariff contains explicit rules for the guidance of the shipper, the American does not seem to make a study of them, but bills and packs his goods in much the same way as for domestic shipment, which lends some color to the alleged popular ignorance in the United States of the existence of a Philippine tariff against American products.

The customs regulations of the Philippines with regard to imports are like those to other countries—technical and arbitrary. But experience justifies them, and being designed with a view to facilitating inspection and expediting the admission of merchandise into the islands, it is very essential that invoices are made to conform to their requirements if delays and difficulties are to be avoided.

The tariff distinction between gross and net weight seems to be the source of much trouble in American shipments, the duty being levied upon the total weight of the package in the one case and upon the gross weight less the exterior case, crate or receptacle in the other, the interior and immediate packing or receptacle being considered for tariff purposes a part of the net weight.

A careful study of the tariff by the American shipper with reference to the class of goods sent out, the packing of these goods not only securely, but with special reference to the mode of assessment of duty—whether by gross or net weight, and a full statement of all essential particulars in the invoice, tending to reduce to a minimum the opening, weighing and re-packing of merchandise, would not only save much delay and irritation on the part of customs officials and importers, but would also save customers for American goods and increase their popularity among the merchants of the islands.

In both these cases of substantial packing, and packing and invoicing with reference to tariff considerations, there is evidence of the inexperience of the American shipper but recently entering foreign fields from a heretofore chiefly domestic trade, and only imperfectly adjusting himself to the new conditions involved. But these important matters of detail must be acquired by him if American products are to get the full credit due them, in competition with the established trade and export traditions of older countries.

A further hint for the promotion of American exports in the islands is offered by Mr. S. B. Shiley of the Government Museum at Manila in a communication to the Secretary of the Department of Commerce and Labor. The practice of American exporters demanding one-half cash with order and the balance upon receipt of goods is contrasted with the credit terms of from three to twelve months offered by European agents, and a further handicap to American goods is emphasized.

Under the conditions imposed by American merchants, as stated, the Philippine importer must advance half the purchase money from three to four months before the receipt of his goods, and, paying the balance on arrival, it is not until from one to three months later that he realizes upon his transaction. With bank loans at exorbitant rates in Manila, interest becomes a large factor in the cost of American goods to the Philippine importer with business conducted on a cash basis, and with the European practice of carrying the interest where low rates prevail, the under-selling of American goods in the islands markets must follow with a corresponding failure to realize possible trade expansion, unless the American exporter takes counsel of the European and adjusts his trade terms to the conditions of this distant market with its high money rates.

The above points are submitted to the attention of the American exporter as conducive to the popularizing of his wares with the island merchant, whose preferences must be a chief factor in the growth of American exports to the Philippines. But with American products submitted to him upon the same favorable terms and under the same favorable conditions as European, the exporter of the United States must for the present rest his case, and may with some confidence look forward to rising from a leading factor in the present thirty million dollars' worth of imports, to a preponderating contributor in the increasing total of the future.

No. 11, SERIES 1904-1905.

OF

MAY, 1905.

PREPARED IN THE

BUREAU OF INSULAR AFFAIRS

WAR DEPARTMENT.

EXPLANATION OF REGULAR STATISTICAL TABLES.

General imports.—The regular statement of imports of merchandise, by articles and countries, in this publication is what is termed the statement of general imports, embracing imported articles entered for immediate consumption on arrival and articles entered for warehouse.

The term “entry for consumption” is the technical name of the import entry made at the custom-house, and does not imply that the goods have been actually consumed, but simply that they have been delivered into the custody of the importer and that the duties on the dutiable portion have been paid.

The values of articles imported are governed by the regulations in effect May 1, 1899, which prescribe that the values of imported merchandise subject to duty shall be “the actual market value or wholesale price of such merchandise as bought and sold in usual wholesale quantities at the time of exportation in the principal markets of the country from whence imported, and in the condition in which such merchandise is there bought for exportation or consigned for sale, including the value of all cartons, cases, crates, boxes, sacks, and coverings of any kind, and all other costs, charges, and expenses incident to placing the merchandise in condition ready for shipment.”

Domestic exports.—The regular statement of domestic exports, by articles and countries, in this publication exhibits the exports of domestic products or manufactures, also exports of commodities of foreign origin which have been changed from the form in which they were imported or enhanced in value by further manufacture.

The value of exports of domestic merchandise is their value at the time of exportation in the ports of the island whence they are exported.

Tonnage tables.—In the tables of tonnage movement the tonnage is stated in net tons of 100 cubic feet carrying space after the prescribed allowances are made for crew space, engine space, etc.

Weights.—In all tables published the ton weight is 2,240 pounds and the hundred weight is 112 pounds, unless indicated otherwise.

Customs districts.—Statements of imports and exports are shown by customs districts which have a certain prescribed limit of territory with a port of entry.

No. 12, SERIES 1904-1905.

OF

COMMERCE OF THE PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

JUNE, 1905.

PREPARED IN THE

BUREAU OF INSULAR AFFAIRS

WAR DEPARTMENT.

EXPLANATION OF REGULAR STATISTICAL TABLES.

General imports.—The regular statement of imports of merchandise, by articles and countries, in this publication is what is termed the statement of general imports, embracing imported articles entered for immediate consumption on arrival and articles entered for warehouse.

The term “entry for consumption” is the technical name of the import entry made at the custom-house, and does not imply that the goods have been actually consumed, but simply that they have been delivered into the custody of the importer and that the duties on the dutiable portion have been paid.

The values of articles imported are governed by the regulations in effect May 1, 1899, which prescribe that the values of imported merchandise subject to duty shall be “the actual market value or wholesale price of such merchandise as bought and sold in usual wholesale quantities at the time of exportation in the principal markets of the country from whence imported, and in the condition in which such merchandise is there bought for exportation or consigned for sale, including the value of all cartons, cases, crates, boxes, sacks, and coverings of any kind, and all other costs, charges, and expenses incident to placing the merchandise in condition ready for shipment.”

Domestic exports.—The regular statement of domestic exports, by articles and countries, in this publication exhibits the exports of domestic products or manufactures, also exports of commodities of foreign origin which have been changed from the form in which they were imported or enhanced in value by further manufacture.

The value of exports of domestic merchandise is their value at the time of exportation in the ports of the island whence they are exported.

Tonnage tables.—In the tables of tonnage movement the tonnage is stated in net tons of 100 cubic feet carrying space after the prescribed allowances are made for crew space, engine space, etc.

Weights.—In all tables published the ton weight is 2,240 pounds and the hundred weight is 112 pounds, unless indicated otherwise.

Customs districts.—Statements of imports and exports are shown by customs districts which have a certain prescribed limit of territory with a port of entry.

GENERAL STATEMENT OF PHILIPPINE COMMERCE, FISCAL YEAR 1905.

Commercial conditions measured by the balance of trade make a more favorable showing for the past year than during any previous fiscal period since American occupation. With the exception of a small credit in 1903, the record has been one of persistent and frequently large debits against the islands throughout. In 1905 there is for the first time the considerable trade balance of approximately a million and a half in their favor.

This result is due to a decrease in the value of imports as well as increased export values. The reduced imports are to be construed favorably, as the decline is considerably more than covered by an enormous reduction in rice imports, and other imports show a considerable increase with the decline of this heavy foreign drain on the islands' resources for their prime necessity of life. The revival of Philippine rice culture as evidenced by these import returns is a most hopeful feature in the condition of the islands. The increased export trade while satisfactory in itself does not point to increased industrial activity for the year, and is to be attributed more to the fortuitous circumstance of good prices for the two leading products of the islands than to increased production, sugar being the only one of the important exports that shows an increase in quantity over that of the previous year.

Export totals for 1905 with an increase of more than two millions over those of the previous year, approximate more nearly to the figures of 1903, the record year of the islands' export activity. The participation of the United States in this trade has been conspicuous with an increased consumption of insular products to the value of over four and a half millions beyond that of 1904. After discounting improved prices the figures show that the American demand has made substantial inroads on the previous source of supply of other countries, absorbing nearly half the total exports for the year.

The sugar trade shows the effect not only of the improved prices that have recently prevailed throughout the world, but of more satisfactory conditions of production as well. In quantity there has been an increase of about fifty per cent over the small showing of 1904, and slightly larger exports than for any previous fiscal period during American occupation; while export values under the advantage of exceptional prices show about a million dollars to the credit of the islands in excess of that received for nearly the same quantity exported in 1903. In this favorable sugar export trade the United States participates conspicuously as a purchaser, being credited with about half the total, while the remainder is almost wholly appropriated by the near-by oriental markets.

Hemp exports show a further slight decline in quantity from the record figures of 1903, and are 1,178 tons less than in 1904; but good prices are indicated with export values slightly in excess of those of either of these years. The operation of the duty refund provision of the act of March 8, 1902, continues for the period mentioned to divert hemp shipments to the United States, which show an increase in excess of two million dollars in the face of practically stationary totals,—American purchases being nearly sixty per cent of the hemp export production of the islands.

The export tobacco trade declines slightly in value from that of 1904, but this decline is far heavier than the figures would indicate, inasmuch as a systematic under-valuation of leaf exports, recently discovered by the insular Collector of Customs, has been corrected in the reports for the past six months, and valuations of leaf exports during this period have been more than fifty per cent in excess of previously rendered figures. As a matter of fact the quantity of leaf exports shows a steady annual decline from 1902, the maximum fiscal period under American occupation, and in 1905 reaches the lowest figures since 1900. Manufactured tobacco exports make a more creditable showing for the year with values practically the same as for the two previous years,—a new level of export values, however, which is considerably below that for the earlier years of American administration.

Copra exports show a further decline from the unprecedented figures of 1903, and represent a value of but about two million dollars compared with nearly four and a half million of that year. A decline for two successive years and of such magnitude gives a discouraging impression of the industry,—especially in view of the recent manifestations of interest in the subject and the advantages possessed by the islands for supplying the increasing demands of commerce. But the erratic character of this export trade is not confined to late years, and it is submitted that the important part which the cocoanut plays in the domestic economy of the islands and the relation of a constant enormous home consumption to the export trade in copra will be found to explain the wide fluctuations to be noted in these exports ever since more than a decade ago they assumed a degree of prominence. In the light of the wide local demands upon the cocoanut palm for both food and drink, and the use of the oil as an illuminant and for culinary purposes, copra exports become more of the nature of a surplus production, and bearing the brunt of fluctuations in the total harvest of the tree, naturally show the extreme irregularities found in the figures.

The Philippine census report furnishes interesting data of the increased planting of cocoanut trees consequent upon the increasing export demand for copra, and their arrival at the bearing age promises a large increase in production, destined no doubt to figure in the foreign trade, while there continues both in the United States and in the islands much interest with regard to the industry, oil extracting plants, and improved methods for the exploitation of the cocoanut; but the nut and its products as an export factor of the islands will continue for some time to be dominated by this large but unknown volume of home consumption.

American purchases of both Philippine tobacco and copra for the year show increases, but the ratio of a few thousand to totals of millions gives little significance to this trade. Tobacco is doubly handicapped by a tariff and an unappreciative American taste, while the advantage of a refund of export duty to American purchasers of Philippine copra has thus far not operated appreciably to make the islands a source of supply for the American trade; and hemp and sugar make up virtually the whole of American purchases, which during the past fiscal year aggregated nearly half the export trade.

As previously stated the decline in rice imports is the conspicuous feature of the year's trade. This amounts to over four million dollars and leaves a considerable margin in the reduced total of the import trade for increased imports of other commodities,—increases that are most conspicuous in the cotton trade and that of iron and steel.

Imports of animals and animal products show a nominal decline, but with the contribution of the United States largely increased, due chiefly to an almost doubling of her boot and shoe trade, which for the year is a close second to that of Spain.

The import shrinkage in the group of cereals other than rice is more than explained by the decline of the year in wheat flour receipts from the United States amounting to more than two hundred thousand dollars in value. This is consequent upon an American shortage in production, and this deficit in a trade that is dominated by the United States is partly met for the year by largely increased imports from Australasia to the value of about a hundred thousand dollars.

Meat and meat products show an increased importation, and the United States, credited with small gains, contributes only about ten per cent of the group total. A conspicuous gain is to be noted in the item of fresh beef, of which Australasia is credited with all but ten dollars worth in a trade that is nearing a half million dollars.

Fish and dairy products indicate a practically stationary trade, the United States being credited with gains in her considerable canned salmon exports, and retaining, with little change in the figures, her third of the condensed milk trade.

Imports of liquors and beverages were valued at about one and a half million in 1902, but have steadily decreased to about eight hundred thousand in 1905, of which the United States contributes $325,142.

Cotton and cotton manufactures show a marked reaction from the depression in the figures of 1904, with an increase of one and a half million, while the United States' trade is more than doubled, amounting to thirteen per cent of the total in 1905, and showing most conspicuous gains in closely woven cloths, which represent more than half of the six and a half million dollar cotton trade of the islands.

Imports of silk, wool, and vegetable fibers continue to decline, being half a million less than in 1903. Notable reductions for the year are to be found in woolen cloths and silk yarn and thread. The contribution of the United States to this large miscellaneous textile group is relatively small and suffers in the general shrinkage for 1905.

In a jewelry and gold and silver ware trade that shows a decline of a hundred thousand dollars, American sales have practically doubled, but still represent only ten per cent of the one hundred and seventy-five thousand dollar total for the year.

Imports of iron and steel and their manufactures continue to make noteworthy increases, reaching nearly three million dollars in value, of which the United States is credited with $1,326,495. The American gain has been rapid beyond that of the general increase, and from a scant one-fourth in 1903 is nearing one-half in the total of 1905. In a larger American iron and steel trade for 1905 by the sum of four hundred and forty thousand dollars, the chief increases are to be noted in electrical machinery and structural materials, but the showing is satisfactory throughout a wide range of schedules.

Imports of drugs, chemicals, paints, and dyes show a group total that has slightly but steadily increased in recent fiscal years. The United States does not figure conspicuously in the group as a whole, which is dominated by a single item of opium, amounting in value to $850,383 and showing an increase of about eighty thousand dollars over the figures of 1904. But with the contemplated restrictive legislation provided for under the new tariff, this large and increasing but undesirable trade is destined to decline.

Imports under the miscellaneous grouping of glass and china ware, earths, and stones show a recovery in totals from the depression of 1904. The cement trade, expressive of the new insular era of construction and reconstruction, with an increase of about a hundred thousand dollars for the year becomes a very conspicuous feature of the group and represents nearly half of the half million dollar group total. The United States shares in the increased cement trade, but unfortunately not to the extent that it might have, owing to a shipping combine advancing American-Philippine freights and thus diverting large government purchases to other markets. The action of the shipping interests led to a vigorous protest from the Governor General, and the incident serves to furnish an object lesson of how American exports—especially of this character—must be affected by the pending coastwise legislation that by common consent is destined to advance rates between the two countries.

The imports of both paper and wood and their manufactures are of about the same value as in 1904, and in the paper trade the United States remains nearly constant to the earlier figures, contributing about a third of the three-quarters of a million total. In wood and its manufactures the American trade is increased by fifty thousand dollars and is credited with more than half of the six hundred thousand dollar trade for the year.

With illuminating oil representing eight-ninths of the nine hundred thousand dollar total of the oil imports for the year, the large increase of about three hundred thousand dollars is to be accounted for in this item. The illuminating oil gain is chiefly to the credit of the United States, but it is to be noted that in spite of war and of serious disorders in the Baku oil fields, Russia shares in this increased trade with exports to the islands in excess of those of the previous year. The gasoline trade, amounting to but $13,447, shows a slight shrinkage for the year, but with the halving of the previous duty by the new tariff it is expected that large increase in consumption will follow in consequence of its more extended use as a motive power for small vessels.
